

WHAT'S COOKING AT MTI

JANUARY, 26 2007

We just completed probably the busiest week since Thanksgiving. We had three guest speakers, plus a guest from King Middle School who came to be mentored by adult student Jamie Gregorich.

(L - R): Jamie Gregorich, 6th grader from King, Jamie Steele and her Mom. Jamie S is competing in a competition making an edible centerpiece so she came to us to brush up on her knife skills. Looks like she did a fine job.

This week's student is another new student that just started a couple of weeks ago. James Graham

Q.: James, what high school do you attend?

A.: I go to Community High School

Q.: Why did you come to MTI culinary program?

A.: It's one of the best!

Q.: What do you enjoy most about class?

A.: Cooking new things and using new ingredients

Q.: Do you work and where?

A.: Yes, I work at Woody's BBQ

Q.: What do you plan to do after you complete school?

A.: I'd like to work at the Ritz Carlton or a nice restaurant. Eventually own my own restaurant.

Here's James this week, in his second week, flipping crepe's already, a quick learner!

This weeks Dress code guideline is: All Students may not wear footwear that are NOT secured by the heel. This includes flip flops and thongs.

And of course as usual,

Mr "C" says..... What do the Colts and Da Bears and the MTI Culinary arts students have in common? They are all preparing for the big day!Good luck at SkillsUSA :)

Kind of busy this week so this is short, everyone have a good, safe weekend andGo cook sumthin'!
